

COME FOLLOW ME NARRATION

Come, follow me, the Savior said. But how far? How much? A choice that speaks to who we are. Who we want to be. Eternally. To follow His directions, to obey His law, brings peace.

There is more. To know joy, we must know sorrow.

Jesus Christ suffered pains and afflictions and temptations of every kind so He might be filled with mercy. And we follow Him through defining experiences in our own lives. We learn how to succor and lift and bless. We learn to love. As he does.

“The Son of Man hath descended below them all.” And so must we.

For His way is the only way to a fulness of light and truth and joy.

A broken heart, a contrite spirit, is the soul offering we make. To know Him. Be one with Him. To have Eternal life.

What does that mean? It means we see ourselves in our eternal context. Our no beginning, no ending reality. We are on earth temporarily to learn and choose and become. We willingly subject ourselves to every event, condition, and circumstance necessary for us to understand and know Jesus Christ. We then are able to lift and bless and love as He does because we have broken heart experiences like Him. While it does not mean we aggressively seek them, it means we are willing to have them. We will see Jesus Christ in our trying and challenging situations. We use what we learn, through His grace, to become like Him.

Because, in every way, we choose to follow Him. And we will be...as He is. We will have His Eternal Life.
